Boasting ocean views from both the front and the back, this beautiful Long Island house with typical clapboard siding is part of the prestigious Sachem's Head Association. As a member, you will be able to use a private beach and boat launch, but the house comes with its own dock as well.

Originally a boathouse, this 3,315 sq. ft. home was professionally transformed into a pleasant four-bedroom, two-bath layout. The master suite overlooks Long Island Sound, two other bedrooms face the bay, one has a small private deck, and the fourth offers both ocean and bay views. The kitchen is equipped with cherry cabinets, granite countertops, a Miele refrigerator, and more. The living room has a cozy fireplace and the office has a built-in library.

Rinse off in the outside shower after coming home from a swim, enjoy a cup of coffee on the second-level deck, sit on the deck and watch the sunset—all of this and more is what this brightly lit home has to offer.

Land: .33 acres, interior: 3,315 sq. ft. The property listing by Page Taft Real Estate, agent Karen Stephens.
